

How The New Zealand Government Made A Digital Identity Black Market That Is Now Here To Stay

Preface: Since the launch of New Zealand's traffic light system on Dec 3rd 2021 we have been buying and selling New Zealand vaccine pass codes. We have been doing this for two main reasons: 1) To show how easily the traffic light system can be almost completely undermined. 2) To help some of the countless New Zealanders who have had their human rights arbitrarily breached by their own government.

This is an open letter to the New Zealand public focusing on some of the unintended<sup>1</sup> consequences of New Zealand's traffic light system, which include:

1. The tokenization of government-verified personal identities.
2. The commodification of government-verified personal identities.
3. The likely persistence of the digital identity black market.

The tokenization of government-verified personal identities

The first, middle and last names, and date of birth of COVID-19 vaccinated<sup>2</sup> New Zealanders have been tokenized by the New Zealand government. A token is an economic and cryptographic term, commonly meaning an issued transferable unit.

The process of tokenization: A unique code<sup>3</sup> is issued to represent a COVID-19 vaccinated New Zealander's personal identity on a database discoverable by government-verified software. The code (representing someones personal identity) is transferable and is able to be decoded and verified by anyone using the NZ Pass Verifier app.

“The New Zealand government has turned the personal identities of millions of COVID-19 vaccinated New Zealanders into NFTs (non-fungable tokens), some of which are now being traded world wide.”

The commodification of government-verified personal identities

Vaccine pass codes became objects of trade as soon as they started being issued to the New Zealand public.

Government mandates on the domestic use of vaccine pass codes made many unvaccinated New Zealanders willing to pay high prices to purchase vaccine pass codes. High prices incentivised many vaccinated New Zealanders to voluntarily sell their own vaccine pass codes. Those with access to the vaccine pass codes of others are also incentivised to record and sell them, often without the original owner even knowing. Many vaccine pass codes are gathered from New Zealanders who post images of their vaccine pass codes on social media.

“Government-verified personal identities are not just valuable to unvaccinated New Zealanders wanting to watch their kids play sport, they are also potentially valuable to foreign and domestic, state and non-state actors who could have nefarious intentions.”

The likely persistence of the digital identity black market

It is likely that the personal identities of COVID-19 vaccinated New Zealanders will continue to be bought and sold, even after vaccine pass mandates are brought to an end. There are three main reasons for this: 1) The existence of multiple avenues of demand for government-verified personal identities. 2) The inability of government authorities to halt the trade of vaccine pass codes. 3) The ability for vaccine pass codes to be verified by offline government-verified software and/or the ability of the verification of vaccine pass codes to be recorded.

Godless government and the new world order

The new world order is forming as a result of 20th and 21st century information technology breakthroughs that are giving rise to: 1) The separation of currency and state. 2) Freedom of information.

Godless, or unlawful, government will be held to ever increasing account as these technologies continue to permeate throughout society, becoming more commonly understood and utilized.

May all who subjugate their fellow man be met with the righteous sword of the Lord Jesus Christ. For we, free men, have died and will continue to die, gladly, for the preservation of The Holy Law.

Jesus is King. Matthew 10:34
